

THE GRID

work in progress

“The Grid” is a body of work which through video and photography explores the morphology of the city in our everyday commuting, putting special attention to the way we move, the elements and technology we use to move within the urban areas.

